The Council of the Swiss Abroad (CSA), often referred to as the “Parliament of the Fifth Switzerland”, strives to defend the political interests of the ever-growing community of Swiss expatriates. In the past, the CSA has advocated for expatriate interests on a large number of issues, ranging from banking relations to social insurance.

Despite its importance and considerable political clout, Swiss citizens abroad generally know little about the functioning and the policy priorities of the CSA. Hence, we have invited current delegates of the CSA from the United States to discuss how the Council operates, what it aims to achieve, and how it can give a voice to the diverse community of Swiss citizens in the United States. The event will conclude with a Q&A session.

Speakers:

- Jeanette Seifert-Widmer (New York City, NY)
